Dear Friends:

KLIOS is five years old! It is hard to know where the time went. Since beginning in early 2000, we have been very busy. Our talents have been in demand for a number of projects relating to innovation, growth and sustainable economic development. We have worked alongside many clients, both public and private. Our work has taken many different forms. With every engagement, we try to fulfill our mission:

“Improving the economic well-being of regions, their businesses and residents.”

It is important that we contribute, by remaining true not only to our mission but also to our vision:

“A world of healthy people and successful businesses, living, working and playing in a healthy environment.”

Our work includes economic and market research, analysis, strategy, planning, program implementation and entrepreneurial development. It often occurs behind the scenes, where we roll up our sleeves and work long hours to get things done. We satisfy clients and win repeat business through clear solutions, useful—and user-friendly—information and competitive prices. That is our winning combination.

KLIOS also assists others who are making the world a better place—through conscious living, volunteer efforts and financial support. Recently, we helped sponsor the US visit of Mrs. Shukria Barakzai, a courageous woman from Afghanistan and champion of women’s rights, who set up the first newspaper especially for women in that country. Mrs. Barakzai was in the United States to receive the International Editor of the Year Award at the United Nations, from Worldpress.org.

We are proud of our work and our other efforts. We are grateful for each opportunity—for the chance to do what we love. We hope there will be many more opportunities to build upon what we have begun.

Thank you for making it possible!

Sincerely,

Richard M. Stein
